artificial intelligence and deep pdf

Artificial intelligence, machine learning, and deep learning have become integral for many businesses. But, the terms are often used interchangeably.

Understanding the differences between AI, machine learning

Artificial Intelligence (AI) is a science and a set of computational technologies that are inspired by—but typically operate quite differently from—the ways people use their nervous systems and bodies to sense, learn, reason, and take action.

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE AND LIFE IN 2030

Artificial Intelligence vs. Machine Learning vs. Deep Learning AI and machine learning are often used interchangeably, especially in the realm of big data. But these aren't the same thing, and it is important to understand how these can be applied differently.

Artificial Intelligence vs. Machine Learning vs. Deep

This is the first of a multi-part series explaining the fundamentals of deep learning by long-time tech journalist Michael Copeland. Artificial intelligence is the future.
