According to Shang and Seddon (2002), five major classifications of benefits have been identified and each is subdivided into two or more "factors" that set out ways in which Web 2.0 can benefit an organisation. The first dimension; operational benefits reflects the positive impact that a technology has on organisational operational activities that are usually repeated periodically.

It is a responsibility we are failing to meet. According to statistics from the U.S. Department of Education, the gap in eighth-grade reading and math test scores between low-income students and their wealthier peers hasn't shrunk at all over the past 20 years. (The gap between poor and wealthier fourth-grade students narrowed during those two decades, but only by a tiny amount.)

In this exchange of letters, Hollenbeck, McCall, and Silzer exchange views on the value of leadership competency models. Hollenbeck and McCall argue that the assumptions behind competency models are problematic and that the field's uncritical acceptance of this technique has negative consequences, including a return to the "great person" view of leadership and a disregard for "great ...
