Appel , Haken , Koch : Every planar map is four colorable

Every planar map can be colored with at most four colors. As has become standard, the four color map problem will be considered in the dual sense as the problem of whether the vertices of every planar graph (without loops) can be colored with at most four colors in such a way that no pair of vertices which lie on a common edge have the same color.

Fitting planar graphs on planar maps is related to cluster-planarity [3, 4, 14]. In a cluster-planar drawing, (also called c-planar drawing in the literature), a plane graph (i.e., a planar graph with a xed planar embedding) along with a
