Unambiguous reference systems are a fundamental requirement for accurate and reliable geodetic products. The definition of the reference system, the realization by a reference frame, and the allocation of the geodetic datum have to be strictly coherent.

The Global Geodetic Reference Frame (GGRF) is the realization of the Global Geodetic Reference System (GGRS), made possible through physical points on the Earth's surface, satellites in near-earth orbit, and celestial objects, along with parameters describing

Description of the Global Geodetic Reference Frame

Fundamental to any geodetic system is the spatial reference frame upon which it is based. Historically these were locally or regionally based, but as we have transitioned
