A firestorm is created as a result of the stack effect as the heat of the original fire draws in more and more of the surrounding air. This draft can be quickly increased if a low-level jet stream exists over or near the fire. As the updraft mushrooms, strong inwardly-directed gusty winds develop around the fire, supplying it with additional air.

Highlights An integrated assessment model for air pollution control has been applied in European negotiations. The model identifies the least-cost emission control measures that achieve air quality targets. Air quality will improve up to 2020, but threats to human health and environment will persist. Cost-effective measures are available to further protect living conditions and the environment.
