Flowering plants grow from seeds. A sprouting seed must absorb water before it will start to grow. It must also have soil firmly packed around it and have warmth from the sun. Inside the seed is a tiny embryo, surrounded by stored food. When the embryo starts growing, roots grow downward and a stem grows upward.

and cucumber seeds are large and easy for children to handle, but seedlings transplant best if they are started in plantable, biodegradable pots. Seeds of peas, beans, corn, and root crops like carrots, radishes, and beets don't transplant well and are best planted directly in the garden where they are to grow.
