One is the entropy production denoted by  $d_iS$  due to the irreversible processes inside the system. Another is the entropy flow denoted by  $d_eS$  due to interactions with the surroundings, such as exchanges of energy and/or matter.

A series of nonequilibrium phase diagrams, which agree excellently with the activated diamond experiments, have been calculated by the author and his coworkers on the basis of reaction coupling. The book goes on to demonstrate how these lead to a complete new systematization of modern thermodynamics.

Since the success of the activated process in 1970, diamond growth with simultaneous graphite etching under low pressure has often been regarded as a violation of the second law of thermodynamics. A series of nonequilibrium phase diagrams, which agree excellently with the activated diamond experiments, have been calculated by the author and his coworkers on the basis of reaction coupling.

Nonequilibrium nondissipative thermodynamics provides a solid theoretical base for quantitative calculation of nonequilibrium phase diagrams. A series of calculated nonequilibrium phase diagrams for activated low pressure diamond films deposition agree excellently with a great number of experimental data reported in the literature.

Albert Einstein (1879-1955) said, "The most beautiful thing we can experience is the mysterious. It is the source of all true art and science." For the last 30 years or so, activated low pressure diamond synthesis has been regarded as "mysterious" or a "thermodynamic paradox" perhaps "violating
