This article introduces the concept of stacking sequence table (SST) for the optimal design of laminated composite structures with ply drops. The SST describes the sequence of ply-drops ensuring the transition between a thick guide laminate and a thinner one. A blended design is represented by a SST combined

Optimal design of laminated composite structures with ply

A novel framework is presented optimal for design of laminated composite beams based on a high-fidelity beam model and multimaterial topology optimization techniques. Results are presented for the simultaneous three-dimensional topology and laminate optimization of beams subjected to mass, stiffness and frequency constraints.
