A parasite is an organism that lives on or in a host and gets its food from or at the expense of its host. Parasites can cause disease in humans. Some parasitic diseases are easily treated and some are not. The burden of these diseases often rests on communities in the tropics and subtropics, but parasitic infections also affect people in developed countries.

CDC - Parasites

Zoonoses are gaining in importance globally due to the emergence of new foodborne parasites, which occur at the human–animal–environmental interface. However, the health status of populations, as it relates to foodborne parasitic infections, remains poorly defined despite the overall burden of parasitic diseases.
