a notion of non-privacy " a situation we believe should not be allowed in any reasonable private database setting. We say a database is non-private, if a computationally-bounded adversary can expose a  $\frac{1}{\mu}$  fraction of the database entries for all constant  $\mu > 0$ . In other words, non-privacy excludes even very weak notions of privacy.

privacy is maintained when healthcare providers communicate in the health setting. The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act was established in 1996 to ensure the confidentiality and privacy of patient medical information, particularly when being communicated between healthcare providers in the hospital setting.

primary goal of privacy preserving is to hide the sensitive data before it gets published. For example, a hospital may release patient's records to enable the researchers to study the characteristics of various diseases. The raw data contains some sensitive information of individuals, which are not published to protect individual privacy.

the technologies that can be leveraged to add privacy to blockchains. In this report, we take a more detailed look at confidentiality and privacy, reviewing and examining the technologies and protocols that are recurrently in use or emerging as potential solutions for adding confidentiality to blockchains.

Randomization technique is an inexpensive and efficient approach for privacy preserving data mining (PPDM). In order to assure the performance [12] of data mining and to preserve individual privacy, this randomization schemes need to be implemented.
