Public Interest Research Groups (PIRGs) are a federation of U.S. and Canadian non-profit organizations that employ grassroots organizing and direct advocacy with the goal of effecting liberal political change.

Public Interest Research Group - Wikipedia

An interest group (also called an advocacy group, lobbying group, pressure group, or special interest) is a group, however loosely or tightly organized, that is determined to encourage or prevent changes in public policy without trying to be elected. The textbook used in class defines this as "An organization of people with shared ideas and attitudes who attempt to influence public policy."

Introduction. In the United States, two primary systems of land use control operate in parallel: zoning and restrictive covenants. 1 Zoning is the public sectorâ€™s most important land use tool; it is a regulatory mechanism rooted in the state police power and entrusted to local governments by statute. 2 For private parties, covenants are the dominant method of controlling land use. 3 ...

End Notes. 1 Of course, as Marxist writers have stressed so heavily, those who commit themselves to a particular ideology are likely to be those in the community who perceive that if it is organised in those ways they will benefit. However, commonly, they do not simply cynically support an ideology out of self-interest; rather, they believe that only when life is organised in those ways will ...
