Receptor Signal Transduction Protocols - Springer

Receptor signal transduction protocols is an experimental aid to anyone who is engaged in ligand-receptor and receptor-effector research. This book comprises many protocols written by those who have successfully developed or applied them to study cellular signal transduction.

Receptor Signal Transduction Protocols - Third Edition

1 Methods in Signal Transduction Summary The transmission of extracellular signals into intracellular targets is mediated by a network of interacting proteins that regulate a large number of cellular processes.

â€¢ Cells can regulate the activity of their receptors, e.g. to weaken the signal transmission during long term stimulation â€¢ A classic mechanism is the phosphorylation of the receptor (on a serine, threonine or tyrosine amino acid) ... Lecture 7: Signal Transduction Author:

Lecture 7: Signal Transduction - School of Informatics

Signal transduction is the process by which a chemical or physical signal is transmitted through a cell as a series of molecular events, most commonly protein phosphorylation catalyzed by protein kinases, which ultimately results in a cellular response.

This number of self-contained, "hands-on" descriptions of confirmed laboratory protocols concentrates on receptor-mediated mobilephone signaling, with specific realization dedicated to these receptors which are a part of the G-protein-linked superfamily.
