erotic. sexual acts, but nothing could be further from the truth. Lust per se is neither a predictor nor a measure of consistently fulfilling erotic sex for one or both members of the couple. The idea that a primary goal in relationships is to satisfy our lust is problematic on two counts. First, "satisfying lust" is an oxymoron.

ation of the erotic as a source of power and information, confusing it with its opposite, the pornographic. But pornography is a direct denial of the power of the erotic, for it represents the suppression of true feeling. Pornography emphasizes sensation without feeling. The erotic is a measure between the begin-
