The solar radiation and illuminance data in this manual were modeled using data from the National Solar Radiation Data Base (NSRDB) Version 1.1, which was completed in March 1994 by the National Renewable Energy Laboratory (NREL). The NSRDB contains

Data for USA (NREL - National Renewable Energy Lab) Please Note: The Solar Pathfinder Assistant software has the NREL solar radiation data already in it. In the United States, a major program was undertaken by NREL (National Renewable Energy Lab) to correlate sparse solar radiation data with available weather data at nearby sites. These correlations were used to estimate solar radiation for 239 sites in the US with extensive weather records.

the ground may also be present in the total solar radiation. More precisely, the following quantities associated to solar radiation are commonly measured: Direct beam irradiance ( $G_n$ ) is the energy flux density (units:  $W/m^2$ ) of the solar radiation incoming from the solid angle subtended by the Sun's disk on a unitary surface perpendicular to the rays.

APPENDIX D: SOLAR RADIATION The sun is the source of most energy on the earth and is a primary factor in determining the thermal environment of a locality. It is important for engineers to have a working knowledge of the earth's relationship to the sun. They should be able to make estimates of solar radiation
