(PDF) Spatial Dynamics of European Integration

Although it is agreed that the dual development of monetary integration and territorial enlargement are likely to generate profound effects on European spatial structure, in both West and East, much uncertainty centres around the question of what changes will be brought about.

Spatial Dynamics of European Integration Regional and Part A reviews the debate on European monetary unification. Economic integration raises many issues, one which is dealt in depth is the issue of convergence versus divergence. Part B centres around the dynamics of cohesion in the EU and the associated regional policies, reflecting on experience from the past and challenges for the future.

Spatial dynamics and agglomeration forces in the EU periphery (convergence), while the ENPCs East exhibits stronger and more consistent evidence of regional concentration (divergence). Our results suggest that agglomeration and cumulative causation forces are more strongly in operation in the more advanced, at these spatial dynamics, and Ghani et al. (2013) describe how the location of plants by urban vs. rural settings impact their material input usage and associated productivity. This study examines these forces through the unique lens of the efficient use of energy.

In this paper we investigate the presence of spatial clusters in European regions with similar levels of Gross Domestic Product (GDP) per worker, i.e. spatial clubs, and the main sources of spatial externalities using a new methodology based on a dynamics extension of the Moran scatterplot denoted as Local Directional Moran Scatterplot (LDMS).

Spatial patterns unfold if defectors diffuse (migrate) faster than cooperators, D D $\hat{\%}\% D C$. Consequently, the dominant effect of spatial dynamics is not cooperators outrunning defectors but, instead, the defectors' relentless search of productive patches.

We investigated the social interactions and spatial organization of the Japanese badger (Meles anakuma) using radiotelemetry. Fifty-two individuals (29 males and 23 females) were trapped and marked (tattooed) between 1990 and 1997 from a population with a density of 4 individuals/km². Twenty-one of these individuals were subsequently radiotracked.
