I have a question concerning the performance of static vs. dynamic PDF forms. I designed a static PDF Form which worked fine. Now I would like to convert it to a dynamic form (since another page of the form requires a growing table).

Abstract. This paper develops and tests a dynamic model of hospital focus. It does so by tracing the performance trajectories of specialist and general hospitals to identify whether a performance gap exists and whether it widens or shrinks over time.

A static PDF is simply a picture of the document you want to view. A dynamic PDF, or in the case of Utopia Documents, an interactive PDF allows you to engage with the content that is unique amongst PDF viewers.
