A New Framework for Promoting Healthy Development. Advances in our understanding of the factors that either promote or undermine early human development have set the stage for a significant paradigm shift. In simple terms, the process of development is now understood as a function of "nature dancing with nurture over time," in contrast to the longstanding but now outdated debate about ...

Play is essential to development because it contributes to the cognitive, physical, social, and emotional well-being of children and youth. Play also offers an ideal opportunity for parents to engage fully with their children. Despite the benefits derived from play for both children and parents, time for free play has been markedly reduced for some children.
