"The Gift of Death" is Jacques Derrida's most sustained consideration of religion to date. While continuing to explore questions introduced in "Given Time" such as the possibility, or impossibility, of giving and the economic and anthropological nature of gifts, Derrida turns to the notion of "responsibility" and the ultimate gifts of life and death. Derrida divides the book into four parts ...

Love turns death into a gift and transforms defeat into victory. This force of love permeates The Lord of the Rings and deconstructs the very world that it surrounds. C. S. Lewis tackles the nebulous definition of love in The Four Loves , explaining that there are three elements of love: "Need-love," "Gift-love," and "Appreciative love."
