UNCERTAINTY TREATMENT USING PARACONSISTENT LOGIC

The Paraconsistent Annotated Logic (PAL) belongs to a family of Paraconsistent logics and can be represented through a lattice of four vertices, as demonstrated on Figure1.

a study using mathematical interpretation in its representative lattice. This studies result in algorithms and equations give an effective treatment on signals of information that represent situations found in uncertainty knowledge database.

The formation of Paraconsistent Analysis Systems, or Paraconsistent Analysis Nodes (PANs) as named in this work, acting in Paraconsistent Analysis Networks for decision making and Paraconsistent Artificial Neural Cells (PANCs) interconnected into Paraconsistent Artificial Neural Networks, promote an Uncertainty Treatment forcing the System to give an answer.

The method presented in this work is based on the fundamental concepts of Paraconsistent Annotated Logic with annotation of 2 values (PAL2v). The PAL2v is a non-classic Logics which admits contradiction and in this paper we perform a study using mathematical interpretation in its representative lattice.

Description : Though we commonly make them the butt of our jokes, weather forecasters are in fact exceptionally good at managing uncertainty. They consistently do a better job calibrating their performance than stockbrokers, physicians, or other decision-making experts precisely because they receive feedback on their decisions in near real time.
