A numerical strategy for vibrations of elasto-plastic beams with rigid-body degrees-of-freedom is presented. Beams vibrating in the small-strain regime are considered. Special emphasis is laid upon the development of plastic zones. An elasto-plastic beam performing plane rotatory motions about a fixed hinged end is used as example problem.

Underservedly little attention is paid in the vast literature on the theories of vibration and plasticity to the problem of steady-state vibrations in elastoplastic bodies. This problem, however, is of considerable interest and has many important applications.
